

Mr. Whalen is a professional chemical engineer and the President & CEO of LuminUltra Technologies Ltd. He has nearly 20 years of experience in the development and application of microbiological monitoring techniques in a variety of applications, including water treatment and distribution, energy applications, and wastewater treatment. During this time, one of his major areas of focus has been to identify and convey best practices in the use of improved microbiological monitoring analysis and interpretation techniques to industries including municipal sewage, pulp and paper, and petrochemical processing. Pat is a member of a variety of professional organizations, including: the American Waterworks Association, the Water Environment Association, NACE International, the Association of Water Technologies, ASTM International, and the International Water Association. Mr. Whalen has published or co-authored more than 50 technical papers and presentations and holds 3 patents.